SEMI-CENTENNIAL SERMON
BY REV. J. K. NICHOLS, D. D.
PREACHED BEFORE THE CONFERENCE AT CENTREVILLE,
MARCH 12th, 1879, BY EXECUTIVE APPOINTMENT.

"According to this time it shall be said of Jacob and of Israel, what hath God wrought!"—Numbers, 23:23.

God is the great worker, the Almighty, the Infinite worker, filling immensity, not only with his presence, but with the works of his hands. There are no works in the wide universe that He hath not wrought. "All things were made by Him, and without Him was not anything made that was made." He is the efficient cause of all things. All other causes are but secondary in their character; God himself is the final cause of all things—even of causes themselves.

Infidel Scientists and Evolutionists in their anxiety to get rid of a personal God in the works of creation, may dement themselves in the absurd and fruitless endeavor to find amid the elements and forces of nature the germs of existence—the secret cause of life and being—as though nature could produce itself; but all really sane minds will gladly fall back upon the only satisfactory solution of the great problem—that of Divine Revelation—a Great First Cause, the Deity himself, who planned and executed the universe, and set all its complicated machinery into motion. "Every house is builded by some man, but he that built all things is God." Immensity is full of His handy-works; and whether we contemplate them in their complicated natures, or their countless numbers; in their measureless magnitudes or their overwhelming grandeur, we may well exclaim in the language of the text, What hath God wrought?

How sublime that apostrophe to the Creator of all things by Derzavin, the great Russian poet—

O Thou Eternal One! whose presence bright
All space doth occupy, all motion guide;
Unchanged through time's all devastating flight;
Thou only God! There is no God beside!
Being above all beings—Mighty One!

Whom none can comprehend and none explore.
Who fill'st existence with Thyself alone;
Embracing all—supporting—ruling o'er—
Being whom we call God, and know no more!

"Thou from primeval nothingness did'st call
First chaos, then existence; Lord! on Thee
Eternity had its foundations—all
Sprung from Thee—of light, joy, harmony,
Sole origin—all life, all beauty Thine.
Thy word created all, and doth create;
Thy splendor fills all space with rays divine;
Thou art, and wast, and shall be Glorious! Great!
Life-giving, life-sustaining, potentate!

"Thy chains the unmeasured universe surround,
Upheld by Thee, by Thee inspired with breath!
Thou the beginning with the end hast bound,
And beautifully mingled life with death!
As sparks mount upward from the fiery blaze,
So suns are born, so worlds spring forth from Thee!
And as the spangles in the sunny rays
Shine round the silver snow, the pageantry
Of Heaven's bright army glitters in Thy praise!

"A million torches, lighted by Thy hand,
Wander unwearied through the blue abyss;
They own Thy power, accomplish thy command,
All gay with life, all eloquent with bliss!
What shall we call them? Piles of crystal light?
A glorious company of golden streams?
Lamps of celestial ether burning bright?
Suns lighting systems with their joyous beams?
But Thou, to these, art as the noon to night!"

And all this is as sublimely true as it is poetically grand and beautiful. The old Chaldean sage, far back in the past, looked into the heavens, and, awe-struck with the grandeur of the heavenly bodies fell down and worshiped them as gods. The Psalmist of that period looked into the same heavens; but he saw only the glory and majesty of the Godhead, exclaiming, "The heavens declare the glory of God and the firmament showeth his handy-work!" And instead of falling down and worshiping the creature, he broke out into a transport of devotion to the Creator, exclaiming, "When I consider the heavens the work of Thy fingers, the moon and the stars which Thou hast ordained, what is man that Thou art mindful of him or the son of man that Thou visitest him?" But what were the heavens of the psalmist and of the old Chaldean sage of three thousand years ago compared with the heavens of the Astronomer of to-day? The revelations of the telescope have widened the sphere of human observation almost to infinity, and multiplied the heavenly bodies until they are positively beyond the power of conception. "The telescope," says Dr. March, "in its greatest power penetrates 500 times farther into the depths of space than the unassisted eye. We can see without its help stars and nebulae so remote that no calculations of the astronomer can estimate their distance. And yet the great telescope shows us one hundred and twenty millions of such heavens as the psalmist saw. The astronomer sees the sky in every direction powdered with stars, strewn through the fields of space thick as rain-drops. Every addition to the power of instruments only increases proportionally the number of the stars, suns, systems that are seen. We are warranted, therefore, in the inference that all the human eye has yet seen by the aid of the mightiest instruments, is but a point, a single grain, amid the infinitude of worlds and universes which have been formed by the all-creating hand, and which are upheld by the all-sustaining word of God." ("Unwritten Word"—page 43.)

When we contemplate, therefore, and take in, by the power of the imagination, as far as we can "all this unmeasured symbolical round," these countless "suns and systems sphered afar," with all their magnificence and supernal grandeur, we are overwhelmed with astonishment and admiration, and instinctively cry out in the language of the text, "What hath God wrought? "Great and marvelous are Thy works, Lord, God Almighty, in wisdom hast Thou made them all."

But we are more particularly interested in the creation of our own Solar System, and especially the world we inhabit—this old home-sphere of ours—where the most momentous events of all times have transpired, and the most wonderful manifestations of the Deity have been made, challenging the admiration of both men and angels.

"In the beginning," the inspired penman tells us, "God created the heavens and the earth, and the earth was without form and void; and darkness was upon the face of the deep; and the spirit of God moved upon the face of the waters. And God said, let there be light; and there was light."

In coldness wrapped old chaos lay,
Inert, and without form and void;
With not a single spring to play,
Nor energy to be employed:
As yet no gravitation force,
No action on its central poles;
A stranger to the mighty course,
Though ether bright when now it rolls!

A vast and fathomless expanse,
O'er which an eddy never curled,
Just spoke from naught, or else, perchance,
The ruins of a former world!
Unbroken silence reigned around,
And darkness was upon the deep,
And all the dismal, dread profound,
Was held in more than mortal sleep!

The spirit moved upon the flood,
And from amidst the stillness broke
A voice—it was the voice of God!
And all the slumbering depth awoke!
"Let there be light! and there was light!"

And now the sullen, formless mass, thrilling with a strange power, is moving in every part; and as we gaze the earth takes form in solemn grandeur. Each word divine, a mighty fiat, goes forth burning with intelligence and teeming with power, and all chaos hastens to obey the creative mandate. The arching heavens rise up as by magic; the waters gather to the sea, and the dry land appears. The earth clothes itself with green and grows redolent with fragrant bloom. Instinct with life the waters bring forth, and the earth, and the air, each in accordance with its own peculiar element. The sun takes his place in heaven to illuminate the day, and the moon and stars to give light by night. And last of all, man himself is made in the image of God, formed of the dust of the ground, and God breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul, endowed with reason, crowned with noble thoughts and stamped with God's own immortality. Thus in six days, as we are told, the heavens and earth were finished, and all the host of them; when amid Sabbath rejoicings and the loud acclaim of angelic choirs, the new-found earth goes forth to take her place among her sister stars. And God saw that it was good—aye very good! And as we gaze upon this gorgeous sphere of ours and the glowing system to which it belongs, we cannot but exclaim again, in the language of the text, "What hath God wrought?"

But alas! how short was earth's triumph, how brief her career of glory! The chorus of creation had scarcely died on the air, when man, putting forth the hand of disobedience and partaking of the forbidden fruit, "brought sin into the world and all our woe." Paradise became a desolation and man an outlaw upon the earth, and the very ground was cursed for his sake; and it repented God that he had made man. But the Creator did not abandon his work. Purposing a glorious scheme, Redemption, God declared that the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head. Symbol, and promise, and prophecy, all united to foreshadow the coming of the great deliverer. During the long intervening ages there were mighty forces at work producing changes preparatory to his glorious advent. "But when the fullness of time was come, God sent forth His Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons." Angels heralded His coming, and the Star of Bethlehem signaled the mighty event. And God said, "Behold I make all things new!" Again the Spirit broods upon the earth, and moving amid its moral desolations, for God works on mind as well as matter, O memorable day of Pentecost! "suddenly there came a sound from heaven as of a rushing mighty wind, and there appeared cloven tongues like as of fire," for the Holy Ghost descended, filling all believing hearts with his inspiring presence and shaking the very earth with his mighty power. And now, behold, the new Creation, symbolized by the Church of Christ, takes form in simple beauty and moral grandeur, rising up amidst the sterile wastes of time "a fairer temple to the living God!" Thus, after ages of preparation, the work of the world's renewal was grandly begun; and for nearly two thousand years it has gone steadily forward toward its completion. We are nearing now the sunset-hour of the final millennial-day of its progress, and the glorious consummation is just at hand, when again, with a mightier inspiration and a richer burst of song, not only shall the morning stars sing together and the sons of God shout aloud for joy, but earth and heaven unite, aye

"The whole creation join in one,
To bless the sacred name
Of Him who sits upon the throne,
And to adore the Lamb."

And when we contemplate this glorious work, in its inception and its progress; in present advanced condition and its certain future triumph; when we think of the countless millions of the redeemed on earth and in heaven, and allow our minds to go forward in vision to the final gathering of that white-robed throng, for multitude innumerable, who shall stand before the throne with palms in their hands, and catch the echo of that triumphant song, "Unto Him that loved us and washed us from our sins in His own blood, and hath made us kings and priests, unto God and His Father; to Him be glory and dominion forever and ever, amen!" how can we but again exclaim in the language of the text, with shouting and holy rapture, "What hath God wrought!"

But the greatest and most glorious of all the works of God, is the conversion and sanctification of the human soul. This is peculiarly and emphatically the work of God. "The wind bloweth where it listeth, and thou hearest the sound thereof, but canst not tell whence it cometh, and whither it goeth: so is every one that is born of the Spirit." The crowning glory of creation, as such, was the making of man in the image of God. This was an evident advance in the scale of moral and intellectual being, even beyond that of angelic natures. The angelic was created in the relation of servant, the human in that of son, thus proving his superiority. God made man in His own image, and in His own likeness, as near the Divine original as the finite could approach the infinite, and placed him just at the foot of the throne.

"Foremost of created things,
Head of all thy works he stood;
Nearest the great King of Kings,
And little less than God!"

But glorious as was man in his original creation, in his creation anew in Christ Jesus he is even more glorious. As the glory of the latter temple at Jerusalem, according to the prophet, was to exceed that of the former, so in the reconstruction and renewal of the ruined temple of our nature, it rises to a higher dignity and a diviner glory than before the ruins of the fall. Adam, with all the dignity of his nature, and the possibilities of his great and God-like powers, accomplished nothing worthy either of himself or his maker. To say the least of him, he was a sublime failure! But the redeemed man is a glorious success. He is emphatically the divine man, made like unto the Son of God! He has been tried and found faithful. He has fought and conquered; the victor's meed is his; and he it is who shall ultimately be crowned with glory and honor. What moral beauty, and even sublimity, attach to the Christian character, even in the humblest walks of life! The Christian sets himself in the line of religious life and duty, and dares to do right, even "if the heavens fall!" "He endures as seeing him who is invisible." The world may take no account of him; but God smiles approvingly and points him to a fadeless crown in heaven. But when we call up the great Christian heroes of the past, and view them in the midst of their mightiest achievements, how they loom up into a sort of God-like grandeur! I might point you to St. Paul at Athens, when challenged by certain philosophers of the Epicureans and of the Stoics, as he stands forth in the midst of Mars Hill, exclaiming, "Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious," or as Howason and Connybeare have it, involving commendation rather than censure, "Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are a very religious people; for as I passed by your devotions I found an altar with this inscription, To the Unknown God! Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, Him declare I unto you." And proceeding with that masterly and overpowering argument, even to its climax, asserting the majesty of the Christian's God as the creator of all things, and the consequent duty and responsibility of man to seek and serve him, until he loomed up before his auditors like some mighty censor from the presence of the gods, come to vindicate their honor and their altars, and the learned logician and the profound philosopher alike were confounded before him. I might point you to Martin Luther, at the Diet of Worms, in his final answer to that body as he steps forth into the midst of that august assembly—his life trembling in the balance and dependent on his answer—and planting his foot firmly on the floor, exclaiming in his own nervous vernacular, "Hier stehe Ich; Ich kann nicht anders; Gott helfe mir; Amen." "Here I stand; I cannot do otherwise; God help me; Amen." The whole assembly were "thunderstruck," the historian tells us, and they stood aghast as they gazed at the incorrigible Monk as though he were some vengeful visitant from another world. Finally I might cite you to John Wesley at Epworth; where turning the tomb of his honored sire into a sort of sacred rostrum, he stood forth in his grandeur like the angel of the Resurrection, with death, as it were, beneath his feet, proclaiming the gospel of Christ and thrilling the hearts of the multitude with that glorious announcement! Or better, when about to exchange worlds, his death-bed was transformed, as it were, into a triumphal car and the scenes of his dissolution into a sort of Apotheosis, by which the great preacher was to take his place in the calendar of the gods, exclaiming in glorious triumph in the very hour and article of death, "The best of all is, God is with us!" This was not death; death was swallowed up in victory! Was it not rather a transition to a higher life?

Though a mortal wreck was wrought
The spirit grand,
In ecstasy away was caught,
Unhurt to stand,
Beyond the highest reach of thought,
At God's right hand!

When we contemplate such exhibitions of Christian manhood rising up, as it were, from the human into the divine and the God-like, who but feels proud to call himself a man, and instinctively cries out in the language of the text, "What hath God wrought!"

In contemplating the work of God in the earth, we are struck with certain great events occurring at intervals, giving it such prominence and imparting to it such impulse in its onward march as to constitute them epochs in its history. The exodus, the building of the temple and the return from the Babylonish captivity are instances under the old dispensation; and the Pentecost, the Reformation and the revival of Spiritual Christianity under the Wesleys, are instances under the new dispensation. Confining remarks to the latter: the Pentecost, with its miraculous manifestations, was a wonderful display of the presence and power of God, giving to the Christian religion in its very inception the prestige of a divine sanction, and enduing the infant church with power from on high for the great work of evangelizing the world. The Reformation was a sort of earthquake upheaval of the old foundations of error and superstition that had crept into and corrupted the church; and a re-adjustment of its moral forces, with such infusion of the spirit of life from God, as to restore it to its ancient power and efficiency in its glorious mission of conquering the world for Christ. The work of God under the Wesleys has been termed the great modern Pentecost; and indeed it was scarcely less marked in its early history by the presence and power of God than that of the primitive church itself. Methodism, born of the Spirit of God in the heart of its illustrious founder, took its impress as an organized form of Christianity from his own great nature; and in his dying exclamation—"The best of all is, God is with us!"—he did but pronounce the key-note of the system founded by his life, which was to make it a power for good in all the earth. What was it but a new form of the old battle-cry "The sword of the Lord and of Gideon!" with which the victorious "Three Hundred" rushed upon and routed their Midianitish enemies, scattering them as chaff before the wind. It was the recognition and realization of an ever-present God to give success and triumph to his people, whether in life or death. This was the secret of its power. With such a faith and such an experience Methodism became invincible, and I might say almost irresistible! With this innate power it swept as by miracle over commonwealths, kingdoms and continents, found its way to islands of distant seas; and anticipating and pioneering civilization itself, it carried the glad tidings into the dark places of the earth and the habitations of cruelty, and into the very regions and shadows of death, almost literally realizing the vision in the Apocalypse of the angel flying through the midst of heaven having the everlasting gospel to preach to the nations. Methodism, at this day, is a great and mighty fact, full of divine import, not only in this country, but throughout Christendom and the whole world. From the smallest beginnings it has assumed the most gigantic proportions, almost world-wide in its sweep. Wherever there is sin to be encountered or souls to be saved, there is methodism, with its almost ubiquitous itinerant, its class-meeting, and its spirit of revival, then as God's blessed angel, to "bind up the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and the recovery of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to proclaim the acceptable year of the Lord." The statistics of Methodism for 1877-78 are in round numbers—Ministers, Itinerants and Local—100,000; living members, 4,500,000, with an aggregate population, under its influence and waiting on its ministry, of not less than 22,000,000 of souls! "Behold how great a matter a little fire kindleth!" And when we remember that all this and much more has resulted from the first hundred years of its existence, we may well exclaim again in the language of the text, "What hath God wrought!"

But while Methodism is so Evangelical in doctrine and so blessed in experience: so simple, pure and unpretending in its forms of worship, it must be admitted that its governmental polity has not been in keeping with these beautiful features of the system. The government of Methodism, in its parent stock, under various forms, has been singularly abnormal in its character. While proclaiming spiritual liberty to the captives of satan, it has bound the Lord's freemen with Ecclesiastical fetters, and denied to them the rights inherent in their Christian manhood. Its government was not an outgrowth, natural to the system: but was wholly foreign to it, resulting from outside agencies and influences altogether. It may have seemed domestic and home-like for Mr. Wesley—being under God, the father of all his Societies within the pale of the Church of England—to extend his Patriarchal government over them. But it may be doubted whether it was best for either. For while its tendency was to dwarf Christian manhood, on the one hand, it furnished opportunity for the exercise of arbitrary power on the other, an opportunity which it would have been well for even Mr. Wesley not to have had. And the deed of settlement, with its hundred corporators, was certainly not an improvement on the One-man power, as one master is surely to be preferred to one hundred. But if the government of Methodism in England was objectionable, that imposed upon it in America was even more so. In the former case, the irresponsible governing authorities were limited to one hundred; but in the latter, they might be increased "ad infinitum," each additional itinerant minister being one more superadded to the powers that be! In singular contrast with that of the country—now a pure Republic—the government of the M. E. Church in 1784 was so framed as to secure all Legislative, Executive and Judicial power in the hands of the itinerant ministers, to the exclusion of all other ministers and all the people. This might be accounted for, at least in part, from the fact that all the chief ministers in the Conference that framed it were politically loyal Englishmen, and they could not, therefore, readily take in and appreciate the new order of things. But whatever the cause, such was the fact.

It was not to be wondered at, therefore, that many of the ministers and the more enlightened of the laity should be dissatisfied with the government as it existed; nor that they should put forth becoming and persistent effort to bring about such changes in its principles as would be satisfactory to all concerned. It was their right to do so in a lawful and respectful manner. They were Methodists—Methodists in the fullest sense of the term. They had been converted in that church; there they enjoyed the means of grace the most grateful to their hearts, and which they could not have anywhere else; and there, too, were their dearest associations in life and their most delightful fellowship. They loved Methodism, but they could not be insensible to its defects. They saw the fair form of spiritual Methodism marred by the excesses of ministerial domination. They saw the peace and unity of the church threatened by an element wholly foreign to its real nature and hindering to its healthful growth and progress. And beside, some of them had already begun to feel the pressure of the iron heel of power, and under those circumstances they felt it to be a sacred duty to the church as well as to themselves to bring about such changes in its government as would, in their judgment, bring it more in accord with the principles of the primitive church, and without impairing its vigor or efficiency, render it more acceptable to the masses of a Republican people.

But who were these men—these old Reformers? Were they men who, from their position and character, were entitled to a hearing? Or were they, as they have been together represented to be, mere troublemakers in Israel, aspiring to place and power? According to their most bitter and powerful opponent—Dr. Bond, the elder—they were men "whose very errors," as he assumed them to be, "challenged the admiration of mankind!" And according to the grave and historic pen of Dr. Abel Stephens, they were men whose character, talents and prestige as eminent preachers, rendered their loss to the parent church a deplorable misfortune. Without disparagement to others, I may be permitted to name two of the most prominent—Nicholas Snethen and Asa Shinn.

Snethen was a man in its noblest sense,
By nature one of Nature's noblemen;
Take him for all his heart, his mind immense—
We ne'er shall look upon his like again!
Exalted genius sate upon his brow;
A deathless fire within his bosom glowed;
Yet, as a child, he brought himself to bow,
And consecrate his service all to God!

And Shinn was his immortal compeer and bosom friend; and through life their friendship was like that of David and Jonathan, almost as tender as that of children.

These great and good men, though, in their general cast of character and intellect, very unlike, were, nevertheless, in some respects like Luther and Melancthon, complements of each other. The one the magnificent orator with an imagination that swept through earth and heaven, in the creation of those sublime pictures, by which he held his audiences, sometimes numbering many thousands, spell-bound, while he carried the citadel of heart and conscience with his resistless eloquence! The other, the profound logician, never so much at home, as when revelling amid metaphysical abstractions by the power of argumentation alone, evolving the great truths of the Gospel and presenting them to his hearers with such force of logic as to be positively overpowering!—Snethen had an intuitive perception of great truths; and like some mighty seer, was wont to announce them with startling effect, even in advance of ordinary thought and investigation. Shinn, on the contrary, would go down to the foundation of things and by laborious processes of thought, work up those great truths, placing them upon an immovable basis of logical demonstration, defying all successful contradiction. Thus the one was the pioneer and advance-guard of truth, going before and leading the van of human thought. The other, bringing up the rear and marshalling, as it were, the great body of its forces, and carrying the whold field with resistless power!

Such, and such-like, were the men of 1828, who advocated Reform in the Methodist Episcopal Church, men of piety, talent and culture, and without the shadow of a stain upon their Christian character. And they brought all these great abilities to the work they had taken in hand.—

They calmly and dispassionately discussed the subject of Church Government, and with such cogency of argument, as almost to defy controversy on the part of their opponents, proving, beyond the shadow of a doubt, the right of the laity, in the light of the New Testament, to be heard in the councils of the Church. And availing themselves of the Universal Right of Petition, which God himself has granted, and man has no authority to deny, they approached the authorities of the Church in the most humble and respectful manner, praying for the changes they desired. Thus for two successive General Conferences—1824, 1828—the latter, even after the cruel work of persecution and expulsion had begun in Baltimore and elsewhere, they sought to bring about an amicable adjustment of the matter of controversy between them. But, unfortunately, for the Church, as well as the cause of Reform, these men were misunderstood and misconstrued, not to say misrepresented, by the powers that be! Their motives were impugned, their principles stigmatised as radical in their character, and the whole movement denounced as only tending to disorganization and ruin. They were coldly and even indignantly repelled in their approaches and turned empty away from the door of the General Conference. The response to their respectful and repeated petitions for Reform was cavalier and unkind, claiming for themselves, as itinerant ministers, all Legislative, Executive and Judicial power as of Divine right; and utterly repudiating the idea that the laity should have any participation whatever in the Councils of the Church.

All hope of any satisfactory change in the government of the Church having now vanished, the friends of Reform withdrew in considerable numbers in various parts of the country. Among the withdrawals were fifty ladies, of Baltimore, friends of the eleven local preachers and the twenty-two laymen who had been expelled in that city. These ladies nobly withdrew in a body after addressing to the preacher in charge in the form of a letter that grand Declaration of Ecclesiastical Independence, at the close of which they say: "In short, to find our dear companions, fathers, brothers, children and friends treated as criminals and enemies, persecuted, suspended and expelled; denounced as backsliders and disturbers of the peace; and to be ourselves treated coldly and distantly by our former friends and by our pastors; and all this for a mere difference of opinion about church government, is more than we feel bound in Christian charity longer to endure; and we, therefore, feel it our duty in the fear of God, though with emotions of poignant sorrow and with aching hearts, to withdraw from the church of our choice and fond attachments. To this painful resort we are driven by the measures you have taken against our friends and brethren. To remain in the church under the circumstances now existing, would be to evidence a want of filial, connubial and fraternal attachment to our persecuted friends, and a want of self respect. We, therefore, request you to consider us as withdrawn from the Methodist Episcopal Church, and to furnish us a joint or individual certificate of our acceptable standing as soon as convenient." This was signed by each and all and sent to the preacher in charge, and thus their connection with the Mother Church was forever severed.

These expelled and seceding brethren and sisters, everywhere, for their own spiritual support, organized themselves into societies and kept up their religious meetings. To meet the exigencies of the case a convention was called, which met in the city of Baltimore November 12th, 1828. This convention, as Dr. Southerland has well remarked in his Semi-Centennial address, was unparalleled in the history of Methodism, consisting, as it did, of an equal number of ministers and laymen, elected and sent up as the representatives of both the ministry and laity. Seventeen articles of Association were drawn up by the convention to serve as a Provisional Government for the new organization, which took the name of The Associated Methodist Churches until a Constitution and Book of Discipline could be provided by a subsequent convention. This convention was accordingly called and met in the same city (Baltimore) November 2nd, 1830, in St John's Church, Liberty street. Rev. Francis Waters, D. D., of Baltimore, was elected President, and Rev. W. C. Lipscomb, of Georgetown, D. C., was chosen Secretary, and Mr. W. S. Stockton, of Philadelphia, Assistant Secretary. The convention continued in session three weeks, and the result of their united councils was the noble Constitution and Book of Discipline under which, with slight alterations, the Methodist Protestant Church—the name adopted by the convention—has lived and prospered throughout the first half century of her existence. "The Constitution," says Dr. Paris, "being the law of laws, defines and guards the mutual rights of the ministry and laity, and stands as a land-mark to govern church legislation. The whole stands as a monument of the wisdom and piety of the men who framed it. The true principles of ecclesiastical republicanism shine brightly in all its features."—Paris' Man.

Such was the origin of the Methodist Protestant Church: and from the facts recited, it is clear that the object of the Reformers was, not to organize a new Church; but to reform and popularize the government of the old one, the M. E. Church. But in this they failed; and by reason of the circumstances referred to, they were compelled, as Methodists either to abandon their principles and penitently return to the Church from which so many of them had been unfeelingly excluded; or band themselves together in a new organization, more in accordance with their own views of Church polity. They chose the latter and nobly did they carry out their design, embodying in the new Church the beautiful Scripture sentiment, as taught by the Saviour himself. "One is your Master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren."

Thus organized in accordance with their own ideal of what a Church ought to be in her governmental polity, the fathers and founders of the Methodist Protestant Church threw their banner of Mutual Rights to the breeze, and launched forth upon the eventful sea of Church-life, trusting alone in the Captain of their salvation, for a safe and successful voyage; and for ultimate and peaceful housing in the haven of eternal repose! Humanly speaking, they had everything to do, to achieve success. It was very different with them, from what it was with the mother Church, in her beginning in this country. Then the country was new, and comparatively unoccupied. They entered in at the auspicious moment, and took possession. They thus grew up with the country, growing with its growth and strengthening with its strength. But it was now occupied, not only by other churches; but especially by the church from which they had been excluded. A whole half century of effective labor and sacrifice, had given them position and power; and their Churches almost literally filled the land—leaving but little space for the new church to cultivate, and but a few gleanings in the great harvest field of Methodism, to reward her toil! But they were men of brave hearts and of holy trust in God; and they went to work with a will, looking for their reward in a better world. They organized Churches, laid out circuits and fields of labor; mapped off the whole land into Conference Districts, built parsonages and houses of worship—proclaiming a free Gospel in connection with a free government, and sacrificed, and labored, and prayed for success. Nor did they labor and pray in vain. Under all the circumstances, the Methodist Protestant Church, at this day, is a marvel of success. We have had our vicissitudes, and our circumstances of adversity; but the Church has made steady progress through the whole of the Semi-Centennial period, which we this day, and by these services, commemorate. The disturbing element of slavery, which divided the Mother Church in '44, divided us in '58, all the North and West, with a few fragmentary exceptions, full one-half of the whole church, having gone off in a body. In addition to this, the Civil war was very disastrous to a great part of our work, laying the most of our feeble Conferences in the South prostrate in the dust. And, unfortunately, on coming out of the war, in some instances, we got a little too near to our Southern Methodist brethren, and the result was in a few cases the association lapsed into absorption. We did not lose much in this way, however, the churches and conferences generally rallying to their old standard of Mutual Rights, strengthening the things that remained, and thus recovering their former vigor and prosperity. And no sooner had the war-cloud lifted than our brethren of the North and West, true to their old instincts, now that slavery was out of the way, began to discover symptoms of a desire to return to their ancient moorings with the church, from which they had for a time suffered themselves to wander. This was kindly encouraged in the spirit of brotherhood, and every facility was afforded for the bringing about of a consummation so devoutly to be wished. And on the 17th day of May, in the year of grace 1877, by the blessing of God, there was a glorious blending of the two fragments of the dis severed church into one harmonious whole! It was a scene—that re-union—that angels might have rejoiced to witness. One of our aged ministers from Michigan shouted aloud on the street, as with streaming eyes he gazed upon the sublime spectacle on Lombard Street, Baltimore, when the two sections, by their respective representatives, met and mingled into one; and then moved in grand procession to the Starr Methodist Protestant Church, when in joint convention they ratified the union. And who that witnessed can ever forget the scene that followed—that feast of reason and flow of soul which characterized the intercourse and communion of these brethren, as they realized that after years of separation and estrangement they were all one again. Yes; blessed be God! the union was consummated; and to-day we stand a united church, knowing no North, no South, no East, no West—one broad, unbroken brotherhood, a continual Methodism, national in our boundaries, and spreading out all over the land.

“According to this time it shall be said of Jacob and of Israel”—aye, and of “little Benjamin” also, as our venerable—now sainted—brother, Rev. Isaac Webster, used to call our youthful church—yes; of little Benjamin also, “according to this time”—our year of Jubilee—it shall be said, “What hath God wrought!” With 44 Annual Conferences stretching from ocean to ocean, and from the lakes on the north to the Gulf of Mexico on the south, with 1300 itinerant and 900 unstationed ministers, 1,400 houses of worship, 120,000 living members, and a church property valuation, amounting in the aggregate to nearly $3,000,000, and all this in the first fifty years of our existence as a church, we may well exclaim in the language of the text, “What hath God wrought!” It is true, as a church, we have done but little in the interests of education and of missions. But with the blessing of God we are in a fair way to make ourselves felt, even in these respects. Adrian, Western Maryland and Yadkin are rapidly coming up to the standard of first-class institutions, and are already diffusing the blessings of education throughout the church. Especially are they doing a good work for the church under the patronage of our excellent Board of Ministerial Education, in training our young men for the work of the active ministry. Much may be expected in this direction. And there is every reason to believe that our Board of Foreign Missions, with such an efficient agent in the field, will at no distant day wipe out our reproach in regard to the subject of Missions. We confidently hope soon to take our place in this respect with our sister churches, and do our part in the great work of bringing the heathen world to the feet of Jesus. But I have said nothing of the tens of thousands who, during these fifty years, have gone up shouting from our altars to join the blood-washed millions around the throne. There they are to-day, the ripened fruits of our gathering, safely garnered in the skies.

But apart from all this, the influence we have exerted for good on the mother church in the way of a modification of her polity and its practical workings, is something to be noted. Our fathers labored to effect Reform and to introduce Lay-Representation into that church. In this they failed, so far as their direct efforts were concerned. But organizing, as they did, their principles were not only maintained but became crystallized, as it were, and embodied before the world; and thus the work of Reform went on. What is the result? Why the very principles for which the old Reformers contended and for which many of them suffered ecclesiastical martyrdom, are now conceded by both sections of the mother church. Lay-Delegation is a verity to-day in the M. E. Church, both north and south. They are not up to our standard, it is true, and in this respect our work is not yet done. But revolutions, it is said, never go backward, and we may assure ourselves that these principles, like the leaven hid in the measure of meal, will continue to work until the whole lump is leavened—until the Mutual Rights of the ministry and laity shall be fully conceded in the M. E. Church as our own. But in such a case some one may inquire “would not your church be swallowed up and done away with?" No; not necessarily so by any means, nor is such a thing likely to occur. For while the myriad masses might prefer the mother church with her episcopacy, there would be other tens of thousands who would prefer a church without a Bishop as well as a State without a King. "For one is your master, even Christ; and all ye are brethren." Had Lay-Representation been conceded to our fathers, the Methodist Protestant Church would never have had an existence. But forced as they were into being, other principles, quite as important, have been embodied in the new organization, which the M. E. Church will never concede and which the Methodist Protestant Church will never give up. As a church we have passed the Rubicon, and the very bridges have been cut away from behind us. There is no possible return and there can be no surrender. The Methodist Protestant Church has taken her position and must maintain it. She has long been known and acknowledged among the great sisterhood of churches in this land, and in this recognized and honored relation she must go down to the end of time. And let her but be true to herself and to the memory of the fathers and founders of her polity; and another Semi-Centennial (which some of our children may live to see) will find her established throughout the length and breadth of the land, and marshalling, it may be, a million of immortal men and women in the great work of conquering the world for Christ. And in view of such a past, so full of blessing and success, and such a future, so full of hope and bright anticipation, we may well again exclaim in the language of the text, "What hath God wrought!"

But we celebrate to-day, the Semi-Centennial, not only of the Methodist Protestant Church; but, also, of the Maryland Annual Conference.

The first session of the Maryland Annual Conference was held in St. John's Church, Liberty Street, Baltimore, April 2, 1829—wanting just twenty-one days of fifty years ago! I have been permitted recently to read a copy of the Minutes of that Conference, as carefully preserved by Rev. Dr. Ward, with the deepest interest. It is a most precious relic of the long past. From it we learn that Rev. D. E. Reese, Sr., was elected President pro tem. and P. B. Hopper, Secretary. As permanent officers, Rev. N. Snethen was elected President and James Parrott of Easton, Secretary, and Rev. L. J. Cox of Baltimore, Assistant Secretary. The Conference was composed of fifteen ministers and preachers, and the same number of laymen, as delegates. Only ten ministers and preachers received appointments within our bounds. In addition to these, Rev. Dr. Dunn was appointed to the Philadelphia Circuit, and Rev. John Fernon was appointed Missionary for Pennsylvania and New Jersey! These latter appointments, in their extent of territory, are something to be remembered by all, and especially by the younger members of the Conference.

In contemplating the organization of this Maryland Annual Conference, a beautiful incident floats up in vision to the mind. It is that of a ruddy-faced youth—a boy of 17 years—standing at the door of Conference, knocking for entrance, that he might preach the Gospel of Christ. Those grave men look at him thoughtfully, and whisper to each other with doubtful inquiry—"Can one so young and so slight of form, sustain the hardships and responsibilities of Itinerant life?" They shake their heads significantly, and hesitate about his reception. One of their number, a man of a benevolent countenance and a rotund figure is eyeing him closely. Rising he approaches the youth and they leave the Conference-room together. He enters into conversation with the youthful preacher, and is struck with admiration and wonder. He finds him a prodigy of intellectual strength and culture—a mere boy in years and physical development; but in maturity and breadth of intellect, a man of more than ordinary cast of character. He returns to the Conference-room smiling all over his face, exclaiming as he enters, "We'll take him, Mr. President, we'll take him!" The youth was received without further hesitation, and assigned to Kent, Queen Anne's and Talbot, with that noble man of God, Rev. Dr. J. S. Reese. That ruddy-faced youth was Charles W. Jacobs, of precious memory; and that man of the benevolent countenance and the rotund figure, was Hon. P. B. Hopper, the able Jurist, and Christian gentleman, one of the fathers and founders of the Methodist Protestant Church. Long since have they met in the spirit-land—the young preacher and his patron-friend—and to-day, I doubt not, while we are engaged in these commemorative services, they are looking down upon us with the deepest interest, that interest heightened and intensified in the case of the young preacher, by the scenes of his boyhood's Itinerancy; and in the case of his patron-friend, by the life-long home, where for so many years, he dispensed a noble Christian Hospitality, and the local Church he was mainly instrumental in founding and which he loved so long and so well!

The Maryland Annual Conference consists of two distinct departments. We recognize two separate rolls of membership—the living and the dead. Both have just been called in their order. To the one there was audible responses, as each name was called, by the respective living members. To the other—although our faith may have fondly assured us of their shadowy presence—the only response, as each name was called, was the silence of the sepulchre! But take up that Dead-Roll, the "Roll of Honor," shall I call it?—and run down that list of names—Snethen, Shinn, McCaine, Jennings, Webster, Varden, the Reeses, with a long list of others, honored and beloved, that time will not allow me to mention, down to the last one of the list, so recently added that the ink is scarcely dry—John Edgar Read, the pious and gifted young pastor, called away in the midst of his years and his usefulness! Such a list of names is enough to render any Conference immortal! What a heritage is their honored names and their precious memories!

In turning from the cypress and the sepulchre, to contemplate the living department of the Conference, two venerable forms loom up before me—Rev. W. C. Lipscomb, and Rev. Thomas McCormick, both of them octogenarians, linking the present with the long past, and the only living representatives of the fathers and founders of the Church, yet lingering among us. These aged veterans were among the heroic men of 1828, and took their part in laying the foundation of the Methodist Protestant Church; and have been identified with it from the beginning. They have come up with the Church, through the whole of the Semi-Centennial period, which we to-day celebrate, as among her wise master-builders, even to this hour! I take the liberty here of quoting from a characteristic letter of the former, received but a few weeks ago. Referring to the Semi-Centennial of the Church, he says: "What a pleasure to know that I have been permitted to witness the falseness of a thousand croaking prophets, as to the failure of Methodist Protestantism. To the God of grace be the glory, whilst to myself I take regret that I have not been a more brilliant luminary of our Ecclesiastical Body." How highly we prize these fathers of our Israel, I have no language to express. God bless them! and brighten the closing days of their earthly pilgrimage—even to their eternal rest!

Close by I see a group—not a numerous one—of thoughtful, earnest men. They are scarcely yet in the sere and yellow leaf; but in their demeanor they are grave, and their footsteps are becoming measured and slow. The fire of their early manhood in large degree is abated, or only lingers in a sort of after glow. Some are approximating the apex of the hill of life—some seem pausing thoughtfully upon the summit, while others have already, evidently, started on the down-hill of life! These are the Seniors of the Conference. Well have they served the Church, in their day; but the time is approaching, when, in the order of things, they must step down and out, leaving the Conference and the Church to other, and, I pray God, to more successful hands. May Heaven in mercy let them down gently, as they go; and give to them yet many years of usefulness to bless the Church!

As I gaze I see another group, with noble, manly forms, compact and closely knit. The fire of their youth is only intensified and fanned into a flame. They move with a firm, unflinching tread as if conscious of their power. These are the men of to-day. You see them with glowing countenances and determined mien; ready to do and to dare for God and the church. And these are the men who must shortly assume the solemn responsibility of taking the future, both of the Conference and the Church, into their own hands. May God in mercy fit them for so grave a charge and so great a work!

But as I gaze I see still another group. They are all radiant amid the light of the morning; the birds sing in the branches over their heads; and the flowers spring in their path as they pass along. Hope is in the ascendant and their hearts beat ever in unison with the joyous scenes around them. These are the juniors. They have come up amid the closing scenes of our first Semi-Centennial and have found everything made ready to their hands. I congratulate them upon their circumstances and surroundings. The lines have fallen to them in pleasant places; yea, "they have a goodly heritage." And if I were to venture a word of advice to them, I would say to each in the language of the great apostle to the Gentiles:—"Study to show thyself approved unto God; a workman that needeth not be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth: Quit you like men—be strong: Let no man despise thy youth!" Much is expected of them. May they more than realize the most sanguine expectations.

Grouping all these brethren together, now more than one hundred strong, and constantly increasing, as the living membership of the Conference of to-day, as I look forward, I thank God and take courage. With such a body of men, earnest workers for Jesus, I have no fears for the future of the Conference and of the Church. God has put our cause in this District, and I may say everywhere, beyond a peradventure. It must live, by his blessing, and prosper and prevail. And when we think of our feeble beginning fifty years ago, emphatically "the day of small things," and call to mind that Spartan Band—a mere handful of men—in St. John's Church, Baltimore, without parsonages, without churches, and almost without charges, and their scattered membership making up an insignificant aggregate of only a few hundred souls, and contrast their condition and prospects with our own of to-day, our large and well-cultivated territory, our numerous charges and churches, and our inviting parsonage-houses, with a living membership aggregating probably not less than fifteen thousand souls, and the fields everywhere whitening unto the harvest before us, we may well exclaim once more in the language of the text, "What hath God wrought!"

There are two items of interest in connection with the history of the Conference I wish to notice before I close. The one illustrates the thoughtful and far-reaching wisdom of our fathers at the foundation of the body; the other the wisdom and integrity of their sons during the most trying period of its history. In regard to the first I quote from the minutes of the Conference of 1829. The item was brought forward by that noble Christian man, Rev. Luther J. Cox, and acted on by the Conference.

"Whereas, the members of this Conference are deeply sensible that our brethren who enter upon the arduous duties of the travelling ministry deserve our warmest support, and believing it to be the duty and interest of the churches to render them and their families, while actively engaged in the work of the itinerancy, and also when they are no longer able to do the effective work of an itinerant minister, as comfortable as possible, therefore, Resolved, that this Conference earnestly recommend the members of the Associated Methodist Churches, that in every Circuit and Station within the bounds of the Conference, to form themselves into societies, auxiliary to a society that shall be formed in the city of Baltimore, the object of which shall be to provide a fund for the support of the superannuated and worn out travelling preachers, their wives and children, having a special regard to the education of the children of brethren so employed."—Min. p. 7.

Thus our fathers, while laying the foundation of a pure itinerancy in our District, shutting the itinerant out from all business avocations, all money-making, and shutting him up to the one work of the gospel, were mindful of his coming necessities; and their endeavor by this action was to provide for his dark and rainy days, when age or disability should come upon him, and thus to relieve his mind from depressing anxiety and care while devoting his best powers to the interests of the church. This was thoughtful and just as it should have been; and the action of this first Conference upon the subject was doubtless the beginning of that noble charity, known among us as the Superannuated Fund Society, which has been doing such a beneficent work in our District for years past, in administering to the wants of our aged and infirm ministers and their families and their widows and orphans as well.

The other item to which I refer is the position assumed and maintained by this Conference during the late war. While other ecclesiastical bodies all over the land seemed vieing with one another in their resolutions of loyalty and patriotism, the Maryland Annual Conference for herself preserved a dignified and noble silence on the subject, eschewing all entangling alliances of a political character, leaving her members free, as citizens, to deal with the question, each for himself. In Conference relations, however, we determined to know nothing among men, save Jesus Christ and him crucified, devoting ourselves to our one work of proclaiming by word and example "the unsearchable riches of Christ." This course was severely criticised both in the church and out of it. A gentleman, high in civil position at Washington, approached an honored member of this body with the inquiry, "What action has your church (meaning the Conference) taken in regard to the war?" "None;" was the reply. "So I supposed," he rejoined. "I have been watching your movements. I have the record of every church in the land—your own among them—and intend to publish it to the world that it may be known just where each has stood during this crisis of the country's history." This was uttered in a spirit of asperity and in a sort of threatening way as though that "record" was a rod in pickle for the back of the church or Conference that dared to attend to her own business and let that of others alone. I never heard of its publication: Certain it is the Conference still survives, and is more than ever confirmed in the wisdom of her course in the premises. God smiled on us all through the war and we were never more prosperous at any period of our history. And I am glad to know that brethren of all shades of political sentiment gave it their most hearty approval and exerted all their influence to maintain it intact. But while we were thus severely criticised by some, we were admirably approved by others. A professional gentleman belonging to another church was drawn toward us by reading in the newspaper our resolution consecrating ourselves afresh to our one work of preaching the unsearchable riches of Christ. In a letter which came to my notice and which I had the honor, as the Executive, of answering, referring to the resolutions approvingly he said:—"I thank God that there is yet one church in the land that is true to Christ!" and expressed an anxious desire to become one of us. He soon after united with the Methodist Protestant Church and entered the active ministry in another Conference; and is to-day, and has been for years, an honored member of this body.

In conclusion, reviewing the whole subject, in connection with the Conference, and the Church, and gratefully recognizing all the prosperity and success that have attended our labors during this the first Semi-Centennial of our existence, as a Conference, and as a Church, we may once more and finally exclaim in the language of the text—"What hath God wrought!"

"And now unto Him that is able to do exceeding abundantly above all that we ask or think, according to the power that worketh in us; unto Him be glory in the Church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end! Amen!"
